ORDERS & DELIVERY

Shipping Information

PixelForge provides shipping services for gaming computers, computer components, peripherals, and accessories purchased through our online store. Our shipping procedures are designed to ensure that products arrive safely and that customers receive clear information about available delivery options and associated costs.

Available Shipping Methods

Customers can choose between standard home delivery and delivery to a local pickup point, depending on the size, weight, and type of products ordered. Available shipping methods are displayed during checkout before the purchase is confirmed.

Standard home delivery is available for most products, including gaming PCs, monitors, and larger computer components. Smaller products, such as keyboards, mice, headsets, and storage devices, can generally be delivered to a pickup point.

Some oversized products may only be eligible for home delivery. If an order contains multiple products with different shipping requirements, PixelForge may combine them into one shipment or divide them into separate packages.

Shipping Costs

Standard shipping within Sweden costs 69 SEK for orders with a total product value below 1,500 SEK. Orders with a product value of 1,500 SEK or more qualify for free standard shipping.

The free shipping threshold is calculated after discounts have been applied but before any shipping charges are added. Gift cards and other non-physical products do not count toward the threshold.

Certain oversized products may require special transportation. If an additional handling fee applies, the amount will be clearly displayed during checkout. Customers will never be charged an additional shipping fee after an order has been confirmed without their approval.

Delivery Areas

PixelForge currently ships to addresses within Sweden. International shipping is not available, and orders cannot be delivered to addresses outside the country.

Deliveries to remote locations, islands, and areas with limited transportation services may take longer than deliveries to major cities. Some shipping methods may also be unavailable in these locations.

Customers must provide a complete and accurate delivery address, including their name, street address, postal code, city, and any necessary apartment or access information.

Packaging and Product Protection

All products are packaged to reduce the risk of damage during transportation. Sensitive components, including graphics cards, motherboards, and storage devices, are shipped using protective materials appropriate for electronic equipment.

Prebuilt gaming PCs receive additional packaging to protect internal components and the computer case. Depending on the system configuration, protective materials may also be placed inside the computer during transportation. Customers should remove any internal transportation protection before turning on the computer, following the instructions included with the shipment.

Multiple Shipments

An order containing several products may be divided into multiple shipments if the products are stored at different warehouse locations or require different handling methods.

When an order is divided, customers may receive separate tracking numbers for each package. There is no additional standard shipping charge for shipments divided by PixelForge after checkout.

Delivery Responsibility

Customers should inspect the external packaging when receiving an order. If a package appears severely damaged, the customer should document the condition and contact PixelForge support as soon as possible.

For information about estimated delivery dates, see the Delivery Times article. For instructions on following an existing shipment, see Order Tracking.
