ORDERS & DELIVERY

Order Tracking

PixelForge provides order tracking information so customers can follow their purchases from order confirmation to final delivery. Tracking information helps customers understand the current status of a shipment and identify when a package is expected to arrive.

Tracking becomes available after an order has been dispatched from the warehouse. Customers may also receive updates about earlier stages of the order through their confirmation emails.

Receiving Your Tracking Information

Once an order has been shipped, PixelForge sends a shipping confirmation email to the address provided during checkout. This email normally includes the order number, shipping provider, tracking number, and a link to the provider's tracking service.

Customers should keep their order confirmation and shipping confirmation emails until the products have been delivered and inspected.

A shipping confirmation indicates that the package has been prepared for transportation or handed over to the shipping provider. It does not necessarily mean that the package will arrive on the same day.

Understanding Order Statuses

PixelForge uses several statuses to describe the progress of an order.

- Order Confirmed: The purchase has been registered and an order confirmation has been sent.
- Processing: Payment and product availability are being verified, and the order is being prepared.
- Preparing for Shipment: The products are being packed and labelled for transportation.
- Shipped: The shipment has left the warehouse or has been handed over to the shipping provider.
- In Transit: The shipping provider is transporting the package toward its destination.
- Out for Delivery: The package is scheduled for delivery or transfer to a pickup point.
- Delivered: The shipping provider has registered the shipment as delivered.

These statuses describe the general delivery process. The shipping provider may use additional or slightly different status messages.

When Tracking Information Becomes Available

Tracking information may take up to 24 hours to become visible after the shipping confirmation has been sent. This happens because shipping providers sometimes register packages in their systems after collecting them from the warehouse.

If a tracking link initially displays an error or reports that the shipment cannot be found, customers should wait and try again later.

If the tracking information remains unavailable more than 24 hours after shipping confirmation, customers can contact PixelForge support for assistance.

Tracking Multiple Packages

Orders containing several products may be shipped in more than one package. This is especially common when an order includes a large gaming PC together with smaller accessories or components.

Each package may receive a separate tracking number. Customers should check all tracking numbers before reporting missing items, since different packages may arrive on different days.

PixelForge does not charge additional standard shipping fees when an order is divided into multiple shipments by our warehouse.

Tracking a Delivery to a Pickup Point

When a shipment is delivered to a pickup point, the shipping provider normally sends a notification explaining where and when the package can be collected.

Customers may need to present valid identification or follow the shipping provider's digital identification procedure. Collection deadlines are determined by the shipping provider and are normally stated in the notification.

If a package is not collected within the specified period, it may be returned to the sender. Customers should contact PixelForge support if this happens.

Missing or Incorrect Tracking Updates

Tracking systems do not always update in real time. A package may remain on the same status for one or two business days while it is being transported between distribution facilities.

If tracking has not changed for more than three business days, or if the estimated delivery date has passed without further information, customers should contact support with their order number and tracking number.

PixelForge can investigate the shipment with the transportation provider when necessary.

Package Marked as Delivered but Not Received

If a shipment is marked as delivered but cannot be located, customers should first check the delivery location, mailbox, pickup point notification, and any instructions provided by the shipping company.

Customers should then contact PixelForge support promptly. The support team may request confirmation of the delivery address and investigate the shipment with the shipping provider.
