WARRANTY & PRIVACY

Warranty Policy

PixelForge sells gaming computers, computer components, and accessories from established manufacturers. This warranty policy explains the difference between manufacturer warranties, additional warranties offered by PixelForge, and the statutory rights customers have when purchasing products in Sweden.

Warranty coverage may vary depending on the product, manufacturer, and conditions stated at the time of purchase. Customers should retain their purchase confirmation and any documentation supplied with the product.

Manufacturer Warranties

Many products sold by PixelForge include a manufacturer's commercial warranty. This may cover manufacturing defects, component failures, or other problems described in the manufacturer's warranty conditions.

The warranty period differs between products. For example, certain computer components may include a three-year manufacturer warranty, while some accessories may have shorter or longer coverage.

The exact warranty period and applicable conditions are determined by the manufacturer and should be stated in the product documentation or warranty information supplied with the purchase.

A manufacturer's warranty does not replace the customer's statutory rights against PixelForge as the seller.

PixelForge Prebuilt Gaming PCs

Standard prebuilt gaming PCs assembled and sold by PixelForge include a voluntary two-year PixelForge hardware warranty, unless a different warranty period is clearly stated at purchase.

This warranty covers manufacturing and assembly defects affecting the computer's supplied hardware under normal operating conditions. Examples may include faulty internal components, defective connections, or assembly-related problems.

The warranty applies to the original configuration supplied by PixelForge. Customers may upgrade or replace compatible components, but damage caused by incorrect installation or modification is not covered by the voluntary warranty.

Opening a computer case does not automatically invalidate statutory consumer rights. Any warranty exclusion must be assessed in relation to the actual cause of the problem.

What Is Not Normally Covered?

Commercial warranties generally do not cover accidental damage, liquid exposure, damage caused by improper electrical connections, or faults resulting from misuse.

Normal cosmetic wear, damage caused by unauthorized or unsuitable modifications, and problems caused by incompatible third-party components may also fall outside voluntary warranty coverage.

Software problems caused by malware, unsupported modifications, or user-installed applications are not normally treated as hardware manufacturing defects.

These exclusions describe commercial warranty conditions and do not automatically determine whether a customer has a valid statutory complaint.

Statutory Consumer Rights in Sweden

Consumers purchasing goods from a business in Sweden generally have the right to complain about defects for three years after receiving the goods under the Swedish Consumer Sales Act.

A complaint must be made within a reasonable time after the defect was discovered or should have been discovered. Complaints made within two months of discovering a defect are considered to have been made within a reasonable time.

For defects that become apparent within two years of delivery, the seller generally has the burden of showing that the defect was not present at delivery, subject to applicable legal exceptions.

Statutory complaint rights apply independently of any commercial warranty and cannot be removed by shorter warranty conditions.

How to Submit a Warranty Claim

Customers should contact PixelForge support with their order number, product name, and a description of the problem.

Support may request the product's serial number, photographs, error messages, or details about when the fault occurs. Customers may also be asked to perform safe troubleshooting steps before returning the product.

If an inspection is required, PixelForge will provide instructions for returning the affected product. Customers should not attempt dangerous repairs or open sealed electrical components such as power supplies.

Repairs, Replacements, and Refunds

Depending on the nature of the defect and applicable consumer rights, PixelForge may arrange a repair, replacement, price reduction, or refund.

Repairs and replacements for accepted statutory complaints must be handled according to applicable consumer law, including requirements concerning cost, reasonable time, and inconvenience to the customer.

A replacement product may have a different delivery estimate depending on current stock availability.

Data Protection During Repairs

Customers should back up important files before sending computers or storage devices for inspection or repair. Technical troubleshooting may require reinstalling software, replacing storage hardware, or resetting the device.

Customers should remove sensitive personal information whenever reasonably possible and should not include passwords or account credentials unless a specific secure procedure has been agreed upon.

For information about defective deliveries, see Damaged Products. For reimbursement procedures, see Refund Process. For details about personal information, consult Personal Data & GDPR.